

Rock Challenge 2015 Barbican, York 18 March

27 students performed at the North Yorkshire Rock Challenge 2015 event at the Barbican in York on 18 March. Our theme was E-safety and Charlotte Nolan, our co-host, introduced our performance to the audience:

Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil!

What's right, what's wrong, who's real who's not, these are the dangers faced by us as we invite the world into our bedrooms, living rooms and schools. Come with us as we explore through dance the feelings of friendship and betrayal, fear and redemption as we ask what the price of a small, small world is.

The students had a fantastic day at the Barbican, attending workshops and interacting with five other schools, as well as rehearsing our performance and lighting. Even the Welburn staff had to dance on stage with all the other schools' staff, with Welburn winning the air guitar competition! Everyone performed brilliantly on the night, and the audience agreed, joining in with loud clapping! We won nine awards but more important was seeing all the happy smiling faces, proud of their achievement.

We are already starting to plan for 2016!
